Theology Responding to the Challenge of Synodality

The synodal process involves the Church in all its vital expressions. The Faculty of Theology of the Pontifical Gregorian University takes up this call and addresses the theme of “Theology Responding to the Challenge of Synodality” in an international conference.

The Conference will gather different experiences and visions on synodality that come from the synodal processes in the five continents and will examine the characteristics of a theology articulating its vocation to synodality. It aims to identify paths for a renewed theology in order to lay the foundations for the implementation of a synodal method in theology.
